CAN AMERICANS WORK TOGETHER AGAIN?

For two centuries, Americans worked together to create greatness for this nation.

Now, Americans are bitterly divided, in a fight that weakens our nation's greatness and destroys our leadership of the world.

The greatness of the American people stems from our ingenuity and productivity, our innate fairness and decency. Working together gives us a boundless future.

Americans had put aside our differences to achieve great goals. We won World War Two. We defeated Soviet communism. We revolutionized technology. We even landed human beings on the moon. Now, we can't even fix the roads.

HAVE AMERICANS LOST OUR SENSE OF "NATIONAL MISSION?"

Government is broken. One party controls the White House, Congress and Supreme Court, but cannot pass anything but a tax cut for the rich. The opposition party's leaders refuse to listen to their own progressives. Everyone say, "It's my way or the highway," and so the result is that America's greatness is eroding and the world wonders whether to trust us.

LET US CAST A POX ON BOTH MAJOR PARTIES.

A nation born of revolution and sustained through sacrifice must know its mission, so that we can put the world's most productive people to work, on great endeavors.

Politics fails if tackle football is each play, or when a game of chicken in every election. If we are to retain America's greatness, we must build bridges between ourselves, stop yelling at each other, and work together.

Both parties must find a national mission. Let a brave band of Americans work across party lines, to retain this nation's greatness.
